

Launch Into Your Future

Transfer Pathways and Articulation

Student Learning Deck

Three ideas to use now

- Know this

- Transfer admission and transfer-credit evaluation are separate decisions.
- Accepted credit may count as an elective without satisfying the destination degree or major requirement.
- Official articulation and connected-degree agreements apply only under their stated institution, program, course, grade, and date conditions.

What to know. What to verify.

Start here

- Accepted credit is not always applied credit; the receiving institution and program decide how credits count.
- Transfer admission and transfer-credit evaluation are separate decisions.

Verify before acting

- Do not promise that every credit will transfer, apply to the major, create junior standing, or shorten completion time.
- Do not promise admission to a selective institution or program based on an articulation agreement.

Build your action plan

- Next moves
- Name the destination degree
- Compare current credits
- Find the official agreement or policy
- Confirm program requirements

Use it now

Exit ticket

Write the next action you will take about Transfer Pathways and Articulation. Name the official person or office that can verify your information, and choose a follow-up date.

