FAFSA

Student Learning Deck

Three ideas to use now

- Know this

- Use the FAFSA for the correct award year and complete every required student and contributor section.
- Each contributor uses a separate StudentAid.gov account and completes only the section assigned to that person.
- Submitting the FAFSA is followed by status review, possible corrections or verification, college requests, and aid offers.

What to know. What to verify.

Start here

- Use the FAFSA for the correct award year and complete every required student and contributor section.
- Each contributor uses a separate StudentAid.gov account and completes only the section assigned to that person.

Verify before acting

- Do not promise aid eligibility, an award amount, processing time, or a college's final package.
- Do not create, share, or control a StudentAid.gov account for another person.

Build your action plan

● Next moves

- Confirm the correct award year and current deadlines.
- Create or recover separate StudentAid.gov accounts for the student and each required contributor.
- Gather the identity, financial, and school information requested by the current form.
- Complete all assigned sections, consent, approval, and signatures.
